Basic Cellular System Architecture

How a call travels from a mobile phone to an external telephone network

Radio interface Network connection Click a component for more information

Note: The arrows point both ways because calls and data travel in both directions through the system.